THREE DEPARTMENTS UNITE

Water Department Contributes Use of Hydrants, and Street Department Does Work in Making Washington a "Spotless Town."

Three municipal departments united esterday in an endeavor to put the busiless section of the city into a "spotless town" condition. The water department donated the use of their plugs, the fire department gave its hose, and under the supervision of the street cleaning de partment the scrubbing was begun.

The clean-up is the result of a conference of the superintendent of street cleaning, James M. Wood; the chief of the fire department, F. J. Wagner; the superintendent of fire machinery, T. M. Robinson, and the water service engineer,

With but $4,500 remaining of the original appropriation for snow and ice removal, Supt. Wood felt himself distinctly "up against it," and, following the sanction of the Commissioners, took up the matter of obtaining aid from other
